HOW PLUCK PLUCKS OPPORTUNITY WHILE SUCCESS YIELDS TO INDUSTRY

WOMAN SUCCEEDS ON SINGLE ACRE

Mrs. H. McBride Pays the Debts and Makes Profit on Tiny Truck Farm Here

BOUGHT LAND WITH A LOAN

Less Than Five Years Later She Had Repaid the Money and Remodeled the Place

Did you ever have the desire to own your own home, and to farm on a small scale without isolating yourself from the city? If you did, there is an example right here in La Crosse of what can be done on an acre of soil. It affords an opportunity to study a calling at once pleasant and profitable: an occupation that means freedom, reasonable leisure and plenty of fresh air. Take a walk some day out to Mrs. H. McBride's truck garden, on the corner of Twenty-fourth and Green Bay streets, and don't fail to ask Mrs. McBride if she likes her work. She'll take you down a row of vegetables of her own planting that will make your mouth water, and while you are stealing a handful of green peas, or a pert red radish, she'll tell you, if you wear a languid careworn air, to "Get back to the soil and rusticate."

Mrs. McBride's life has been brimful of discouragements that would have made any one that did not possess an optimistic spirit, give up in disgust, but she has always looked on the bright side of life, and fought her way through discouragements of every kind.

Here in 1901

In 1901 Mrs. McBride and her husband and one infant daughter came to La Crosse from Quincy, Wis., where they had operated a large farm that had never paid. Lured by the promises of a city, Mr. McBride sought an occupation here that would allow him to save, and to provide plentifully for his family. Burdened with an invalid wife, and forced to accept various kinds of work too confining for a man who had spent his life in the open and done work that had no element of the driven man in it, he found life in the city was not what it had been painted to him. For four years he struggled on, his capital gradually disappearing through unfortunate business ventures, until his only recourse was employment as a foreman of building work.

When the capital of the small family, which had multiplied, was exhausted, Mrs. McBride determined to turn again to the soil. During her illness she had been under the care of a prominent physician who had interested himself in her problem. When he learned of Mrs. McBride's desire to return to an occupation which she was sure would help restore her health and supply the necessities of life, he volunteered assistance.

Doctor Lends Money

Mrs. McBride said that she knew of an acre of ground, and a tumble-down house that could be purchased for eleven hundred dollars. "If I had that ground," said Mrs. McBride, "within five years I could be rid of my indebtedness and be making money." The physician offered her the needed money, the small plot of ground was purchased, and the old house rebuilt.

Several months before the five years had elapsed the entire loan was repaid, and the physician was greatly surprised to learn that the house had been practically remodeled, new barns built, necessary machinery and a horse and wagon purchased, and that a general air of prosperity pervaded the whole place. He at once became curious to know how the miracle, as he thought it, could have taken place. Mrs. McBride replied that it was the miracle of cheerfulness, optimism, hard work, and plenty of fresh air.

Has All Vegetables

Her method truly is "intensive farming." Hardly a vegetable that is a native of North America can be mentioned that doesn't find space in her small garden. One of the secrets of her gardening that she believes in with her heart and soul, is the conservation of the soil. "You can't rob the soil and expect it to yield you crop after crop, unless you pay it back something for what it gives you," is her maxim.

The first radishes and cucumbers that were sold in the grocery stores in La Crosse this spring, and many of the other varieties of early vegetables, came from the little Green Bay street hot beds, and garden. At no time during the season, from early spring to late in the fall, is there a day that Mrs. McBride is not out with her children in a harvest of green palls, engaged in a harvest of green palls. You'll walk down a long dais of early corn, a foot high, and you will see tiny hills of asparagus, and small cornfield pea plants ready to grasp their opportunity to climb the stalks, when they are big enough. One of the most important secrets of making the small acreage profitable, is Mrs. McBride's system of a continuous rotation. As fast as a continu-

PRESIDENT WILSON HEARS REBEL YELL

Executive Addresses the Mighty Throng of Veterans of Two Armies at Gettysburg

SOUTH HONORS GREAT SON

Virginian at Helm of Ship of State Typifies Healing of the Great Wound

GETTYSBURG, July 4.—The president of the United States in person honored the veterans of the civil war today. Incidentally for the first time a southern born executive mingled with the warriors of half a century ago on the Gettysburg battlefield and talked to them of what the conflict in which they participated meant to the men and women of the present generation. It was the climax of an eventful week and marked the end of what will probably be the last great reunion of the survivors of the war between the states.

The president made the trip from Washington to this town by train. As he stepped from his car he was greeted by a presidential salute from the regular army battery parked on the battlefield and mingled cheers and rebel yells from the blue and the gray today veterans who had thronged to the station to greet him. An escort of cavalry was waiting to convey the car with the president and his party to the big tent just off the Emmetsburg road on the battlefield where the formal exercises were to commence at 11 o'clock.

Center of Enthusiasm

Many of the old soldiers have planned over to greet the nation's head and the reception accorded President Wilson was a fitting climax to a week of tears and cheers. The southern soldiers accepted him as one of the family and the northern veterans outdid themselves in an effort to demonstrate how deeply they appreciated the end of sectionalism as typified by a native Virginian at the helm of the ship of state. From the moment the executive alighted from the train he was the center of wild enthusiasm.

So far as the regular program was concerned it ended last night and the only set fixture today was the president's address. The camp was opened today at daylight when the veterans were routed from their cots by the stirring strains of "Dixie," "Yankee Doodle" and other wartime tunes played by the military band which traversed the various company streets. There was a quick turning out of all hands. There were farewells to be said and a last exchange of greetings and shaking of hands at the big point of interest on the battlefield.

The band concert was followed by the shrill notes of the fife and the roll of drums as the veterans brought their old time instruments into play and for three hours there was one general jubilation.

Fifty years ago today the war weary soldiers under General Robert E. Lee retreated from the three days' battle of Gettysburg, with no blue forces to pursue them in their falling back into Virginia. Today, as a fitting climax to the most unique peace celebration in history, those Gray veterans who retreated, and those Blue heroes who had won at terrible loss of life, joined in the ceremonies attendant upon laying the cornerstone of the Gettysburg Peace Memorial in honor of Blue and Gray who fell during that three days' battle. The memorial is a tribute to the 40,000 soldiers of both sides who fell in one of the greatest battles of history. Former President William Howard Taft was the principal speaker today. Other notable orators followed him and as the great corner stone was laid in place the battlefield reverberated again when a salute of 21 big guns was fired.

Tonight the 60,000 or more veterans and 150,000 visitors will witness what is expected to be the most gorgeous pyrotechnical displays ever seen in this country. The fireworks will be set off on Little Round Top overlooking the battlefield. The first "piece" to be set off will be a huge American flag 200 feet long and 120 feet wide. At the same time, farther down the field will be set off the figure of a Blue and Gray veteran clasping hands with a dove of peace outlined in white fire above their heads. Another feature will be the reproduction of the signal code of the Union army, 16 pieces set in red, white and blue fire. Corps badges of G. A. R. and the U. V. C. and an American flag will be released from balloons sent up over the two "armies of peace."

The president's address is given in full as follows:

Friends and Fellow Citizens: I need not tell you what the battle of Gettysburg meant. These gallant men in blue and gray sit all about us here. Many of them met here upon this ground in grim and deadly struggle. Upon these famous fields and hillside their comrades died about them. In their presence it were an impertinence to discourse upon how the battle went, how it ended, what it signified. But fifty years have gone by since then, and I

DRUGGIST'S ORDER SAVES MAN'S LIFE

Dilution of Poison Prevents Sudden Death of Henry Hausner in Suicide Attempt

DRINKS BOTTLE OF CHLORAL

Angered Because Landlady Raises the Rent, Rattan Worker Tries to Kill Self

The fact that C. L. Lien, proprietor of the drug store at 727 Rose street, has posted a standing order to his clerks to dilute all poisons, undoubtedly saved the life of Henry Hausner, 709 Charles street, when he attempted to end his life by drinking poison at 3:30 p. m. yesterday. Angered by a notice that had been sent him by Mrs. Peter White that she had raised his rent to $11 a month, Hausner went to the drug store and bought a vial of chloral hydrate, one of the deadliest poisons known, the common ingredient of "knock out drops," and returning to his home swallowed the entire contents of the bottle. He told the drug clerk that he wanted the chloral to kill a dog and the clerk in accordance with his instructions diluted the poison.

Hausner was found by his wife writing in pain on the floor of the kitchen. She at once summoned Dr. George W. Lueck, who hurried to the house and removed the poison with a stomach pump. The empty bottle found on the floor pointed the way for the necessary action. When Dr. Lueck left Hausner was resting easily but at 6 o'clock it was necessary to summon a physician to ease the pain. Dr. Lueck was out on a call and Dr. Robert Flynn was called. Dr. Flynn administered strychnine to ease the pain and this morning Hausner was pronounced out of danger. Hausner came here from Oshkosh about five years ago and established a reed and rattan shop on the north side. His troubles are said to be consequent on the slow returns from his business. He is sixty years of age and has several grown children.

FINDS SON BURIED IN A POTTER'S FIELD

ST. PAUL, July 4.—Coming to St. Paul on a hunt for his 18 year old son, Raymond, who has been missing from home for two weeks, J. Burns of Ellsworth, Wis., was yesterday confronted with the news that his son had been buried in the potter's field. The father almost collapsed in the coroner's office, when told of his son's fate.

The body, which was identified as that of young Burns, was found floating in the river near the St. Paul freight depot some weeks ago. The body will be disinterred and shipped to Ellsworth for burial. The drowning is believed to have been accidental.

DEAF PLAN TO PROSECUTE BEGGARS

DULUTH, Minn., July 4.—Two hundred deaf men and women of Minnesota, in state convention here will outline a plan for the prosecution of deaf beggars.

The delegates maintain there are no genuine deaf beggars in Minnesota, and that all who use their alleged deafness for begging purposes are swindlers.

Self-respecting deaf persons find it difficult to earn an honest livelihood, for then they try to transact business they are frequently met with an offer of money or a refusal to give alms before they have had a chance to explain their mission.

EXTEND LOBBY LAW.

MADISON, Wis., July 4.—(Special.)—The substitute amendment for the general anti-lobby bill reported by the senate committee on judiciary for passage extends the provisions of the lobby law to members-elect. The law now applies only to members of the legislature and permits a period of two months between the election and the taking of the oath of office when the member-elect may be lobbied without restriction.

The committee substitute provides that no paid lobbyist shall "attempt personally or indirectly to influence any member or member-elect of the legislature, upon any special subject or subjects of legislation, otherwise than the appearing before the regular committee," etc. The change in this provision from the present law is the insertion of the words "or members-elect." The new provision is intended to prohibit conducting a campaign upon members between the time of election and the time the legislature convenes.

MORRIS NOT GREAT

DENVER, Col., July 4.—Carl Morris' first appearance here has not impressed the Denver fight fans. He fought a slow ten round draw with Jack Geyer, the local giant, last night, neither man showing anything approaching class. At the end of the battle both men were clinching repeatedly.

ALL AMERICANS CELEBRATE TODAY

One Hundred and Thirty-seven Years Ago National Freedom Was Born

EVENTS THAT CAUSED WAR

Patriots Inspired with Love of Political Independence Revolted Against Tyranny

"The Fourth of July," the birthday of the United States, celebrated wherever the American flag has penetrated or wherever an American citizen may be traveling, dawned in La Crosse a beautiful day. A heavy rain early in the morning cooled the atmosphere to a real holiday enjoyment and while there is no organized celebration in the city, thousands of people seized the opportunity to celebrate in their own way. Trains for Onalaska and Sparta were loaded with pleasure seekers anxious to see the Fourth of July programs in these neighboring towns. Others sought the cool banks of the Mississippi to spend the day in picnics. The small boy is busy reminding his elders in noisy patriotism that he appreciates the meaning of the day.

While everyone is familiar in a general way with the history of this great country and with the course of events which lead up to the separation from mighty England it is probable that the exact sequence of events that resulted in the birth of freedom has slipped the memory of many.

Virginia Leads the Way

It was in May 1776 that Virginia adopted those famous instructions to her delegates in congress "to propose to that respectable body to declare the united colonies free and independent states." This encouraged, John Adams of Massachusetts the next day urged successfully the adoption of a resolution recommending all the colonies to form for themselves independent governments. In the preamble which he wrote it is declared that the American people could no longer conscientiously take oath to support any government "deceiving its authority from the crown."

On the 7th of June, 1776, Richard Henry Lee submitted a motion embodying the Virginia instructions. The motion was seconded, as a descendant of Patrick Henry writes, "by glorious old John Adams, and Massachusetts stood side by side with Virginia." Then, on the 1st of July, congress taking up the resolution respecting independence once more "all eyes were turned on me," says John Adams. Rising, he led off in a speech of surpassing eloquence and a "power of thought and expression which," said Jefferson, "moved the members from their seats."

"Colossus of Congress"

He was "the colossus of that congress," as Jefferson again testifies, the "Atlas of independence," as Richard Stockton declares. "He compelled conviction, and at last, on the 2nd of July, the flame in his own soul fused into a single molten current the aspirations of a people, and amid the glow of noble, daring, fervent speech the resolutions of independence were unanimously adopted." It was then that John Adams, in a letter to Abigail, burst forth in prophetic strains of the way the glad event would be celebrated. So it has been celebrated, but the date of the adoption of the celebration, July 4, is the one the people recognize as the culminating moment of the great event.

The First Banquet

The first banquet to commemorate the declaration of independence took place at Col. Martin's hostelry in Boston on July 4, 1780. The following was the toast list:

First—The grand congress of the United States.

Second—General Washington and the American army.

Third—His most Christian majesty the king of France.

Fourth—His most Catholic majesty the king of Spain.

Fifth—The strength and unity of the triple alliance.

Sixth—The council of the Massachusetts state.

Seventh—The new levies for the war in 1780.

Eighth—Gen. Lincoln and the officers and soldiers in captivity.

Ninth—The Marquis Lafayette.

Tenth—May the officers of the Boston regiment be spirited; may they be supported in making the regiment of the town respectable.

Eleventh—To the memory of Gen. Montgomery and all the officers and soldiers who have fallen in the glorious cause of liberty.

Twelfth—May Americans never forget that virtue, valor and science (wisdom) are the bulwarks of their high beneficence.

Thirteenth—May the anniversary of American Independence be celebrated till time shall be no more.

POLICE SEEK CAR DRIVER

DENVER, Col., July 4.—With one man dead and his daughter badly injured, the police today are searching for Dennis Parker, a Denver and interurban company motorman, whose car killed Felix Dvoracek, 40, last night.

RIVERS CONFIDENT OF GETTING TITLE

Says Ritchie Has Nothing on Him; Both Lads Are Trained to the Minute

BUD ANDERSON IS THE FAVORITE

Will Fight Leach Cross; Two Noted Battles in the West This Afternoon

Both Fighters Confident.
By Willie Ritchie: "I am ready and fit for the battle of my life. My condition is perfect and I am confident that I will win speedily—perhaps in ten rounds. I have no particular plan of battle, save a determination to score a knockout as quickly as possible. I have Rivers' number and am going to beat him sure."
By Jose Rivers: "Ritchie hasn't anything on me when it comes to confidence. I feel sure of beating him and don't be surprised if I stop him early. I base my confidence on my condition and all-around ability. There is no question that I am faster than the champion; I can box as well and hit harder. One punch is all I want. When I land that, there will be a new lightweight champion."

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 4.—Crowds of fight fans streaming to Jimmy Coffroth's arena here early in the morning indicated that a record crowd would witness the twenty round battle this afternoon between Jose Rivers and Willie Ritchie for the lightweight championship of the world.

There was a feeling that it would be one of the most fiercely fought of any seen here since the days when Battling Nelson was in his heyday. Both lads are trained to the minute and both declare they are "out for blood." Both promise a knockout.

There is a good deal of speculation as to just what Ritchie will be able to do with a boxer as clever as Rivers, but his friends assert that he is fit to take all the punishment the Mexican can hand out, and still not lose the punch which he expects will score a knockout.

Ritchie Bets His Own Coin.

For this battle Ritchie has been given the largest guarantee ever offered a fighter in California. Whether he wins or loses, the champion will take down $18,000 in real cash. It is said that if he wins he will probably win about $10,000 more. For several days he has been placing large sums through agents, and announced early in the week that he was endeavoring to bet $10,000, but how much of it he "got down" is problematical.

The champion was still a 10 to 8 favorite at noon today, and the betting was more brisk.

Ritchie came across the bay at 10 o'clock this morning and visited his friends in the newspaper offices. Rivers arrived a little earlier.

Both boys will reach the arena at 1:30 o'clock and the fight is scheduled to start at 2 o'clock.

LOS ANGELES, July 4.—Bud Anderson remained a 10 to 1 favorite today for his fight this afternoon with Leach Cross, the New York dentist. The fight fans here, having seen the Medford youngster in action in several recent bouts, are confident that he will be able to take Cross' measure.

Both boxers are down to weight and both declared today that they felt in fine shape and expected to win. Early indications were that Tom McCarrey's arena at Vernon would be packed when the main event begins at 3:30.

Jimmy Coffroth, the San Francisco promoter, is here to sign the winner of the battle for a twenty round bout in San Francisco in August with "Harlem Tommy" Murphy.

GRANT RATE RAISE.

MADISON, Wis., July 4.—(Special.)—The state railroad commission has granted the application of the village of Fennimore for authority to increase the water rates of its municipal plant. A new schedule of rates is ordered. Among other things, the order directs that no free service shall be given, and that schools and other public buildings shall be supplied through meters and shall be charged for water service according to the rates made in this order. The village must pay the water and light department 1,500 per year for fire protection service and water for street use. A discount is allowed for prompt payment of bills.

Weather

Forecast for La Crosse and vicinity: Unsettled; showers tonight or Saturday; not much change in temperature.

One and thirty-nine hundredths inches of rain fell this morning, between the hours of 3:30 and 6:30, .85 inch during the first thirty minutes.

CAPONI LOSES FIGHT

FORFEITS TO HICKS ON FOUL; BOTH FIGHTERS PLACED UNDER $1,000 BONDS TO KEEP PEACE

WINNEPEG, Man., July 4.—The fight between Freddie Hicks of Detroit and Tony Caponi of Chicago ended in the seventh round when Caponi landed a low blow and the Detroit scrapper doubled up with pain. The referee awarded the fight to Hicks in what was to have been a 12 round bout, on a foul. Up to the time of the foul in the seventh round was a tame one and it was a good draw up to the time of the misbehavior. The match the boxers were arrested and bound over under a $1,000 bond to keep the peace.

WANT WOMEN POLICE

LONDON, July 4.—The international conference for the suppression of the white slave traffic recommended women police as the best remedy for the evil.

STATE HAS NO HEAD

M'GOVERNOR LEAVES CAPITAL WITHOUT TURNING OFFICE OVER TO LIEUT. GOV.

TOM MORRIS

A Madison dispatch to the Chicago

Tribune says: "Madison, Wis., July 2.—The state of Wisconsin is minus an official governor in case of emergency. Lieutenant Governor Morris, now at his home in La Crosse, could be called upon, but inasmuch as he was not invited to come to Madison by Governor McGovern, he has remained at home to avoid the semblance of seeking an opportunity to act."

Lieutenant Governor Morris is in Trempealeau today delivering an address, and could not be reached.

PARIS, July 4.—Dr. Pinard and Dave Barrier, highly eminent scientists, have willed their bodies after death to science for experiment.

TRAIN HELD UP TODAY

FOUR BANDITS ROB ILLINOIS CENTRAL TRAIN AND GET AWAY WITH ABOUT $5,000 LOOT

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 4.—Four bandits held up Illinois Central Chicago-New Orleans train No. 1 at Sardin, Miss., at 1 o'clock this morning, blew up the American Express safe and got away with valuables amounting to about $5,000.

The passengers on the train were not molested, but a fireman who did not obey orders quickly was knocked senseless with the butt end of a pistol, and the train crew was threatened with drowning in the Tallahatchie river nearby if they resisted. A few shots were fired to scare the passengers.

The robbers boarded the train at Memphis, it is said, and rode the blind baggage until Tallahatchie was reached. They escaped, but bloodhounds and posses from Mississippi and Tennessee are now after them.

REEDSBURG TROOP BARRED AT CAMP

Company B of Tenth Battalion Too Indifferent and May Be Mustered Out

MADISON, Wis., July 4.—(Special.)—For lack of interest by Company B, Tenth Separate battalion infantry, Wisconsin National guard, of Reedsburg, that company will not be permitted to attend the annual encampments. This order issued from Adjutant general makes the following comment:

"Since the last encampment the largest attendance this company has had at a drill or tour of duty was thirty-six and that at an annual inspection."

"Special instructors have been sent to the company and special effort has been made by the commanding officer of the company, but the attendance has been too small to make profitable work possible. The average attendance during the indoor instructional period and for outdoor instruction, as reported by specially detailed instructors, has been about two squads."

"This condition has made proper instruction impossible and in consequence the state is not justified in the expenditure of funds to take such a small command in such a low state of efficiency to camp."

"Failure to remedy this condition in the immediate future will be followed by the muster out of the service of the entire command."

These orders of the adjutant general are issued by command of the governor.

The purposes are stated to be the advancement of the welfare of the liquor trade, to secure and advance the moral, material and intellectual welfare of the members. The incorporators are James P. Sheehan, George Haishmaier, Jr., and Lorenz Ohlsen.

A Biting Farewell

Phillipotts, bishop of Exeter, who was noted for his biting tongue, had been the guest of Sir John Kennaway at Exeter.

He was entirely polite until his episcopal chariot was at the door to drive him back to Exeter, then, with one foot on the step, he gave a comprehensive look over the front of the house and the lake beside it and, taking his host's hand, he remarked with slow deliberation: "Goodbye, Sir John. I have much enjoyed my visit. I have only two suggestions to make for the improvement of your home and park. I should pull down the house and fill up the pond with it."—"Memories," by Hon. Stephen Coleridge.

As England Knows Us

There are many educated people in England who believe that Henry Clay makes the cigars that go by that name and confuse Daniel Webster with his namesake Noah Webster. The London Telegraph repeated the latter error quite recently.

A city magistrate had discharged a prisoner charged with a statutory offense under a recent act upon finding by the dictionary that the word used in the law did not cover the case. Commenting upon this, the London paper remarked:

"Webster when a lawyer got off many defendants, and his dictionary still continues the good work."

In Wettest Wales

Rather unexpectedly the slopes of Snowdon, a Welsh mountain only 3,560 feet high, have proven one of the wettest regions of the world. The average annual rainfall of the globe is about thirty-six inches, that of tropical Cherrapouze, Assam, is 610 inches, with an extreme of 905 inches in 1861, and that of Maranham, Brazil, 227 inches. Southwaite, a little village of the English valley of Borrowdale, has claimed the third highest record. The meteorological office, however, has reports from thirteen Welsh stations, of which Luchfa, at an altitude of 2,500 feet, showed the greatest European rainfall—247 inches—and eleven exceeded the 143 inches of Southwaite.

Professional

"I hope you don't associate with that man I saw you speak to in the street just now."

"Associate with him? What do you take me for? That man, sir, is one of the most rascally, corrupt, sneaking, underhand, lowdown, villainous and depraved scoundrels that ever managed to keep out of jail."

"I know it. But why are you on speaking terms with him at all?"

"Why, I'm—er—his lawyer."—London Tit-Bits.

Spitful

She was beginning to show her years, and she was spiteful. One day she called on an old friend. When the old friend appeared and the greetings were over, the visitor sweetly remarked:

"You don't show your age at all, darling."

"Oh, don't I?" cried the old friend, delighted.

"No," said the other. "I was looking for it in the sitting room. When did you scratch it out of the family Bible?"—Exchange

SKIRTS ARE WRAPPED INSTEAD OF SLASHED

NEW YORK, July 4.—The once popular but now waning vogue of the slash and the prevailing tube-like appearance of the female figure have been food for amusement and comment for some months. But now a fresh theme engages the public mind. The new wrapped-over skirts are so constructed that their staying qualities are entirely dependent on strap or spring fastener, and as fashion dictates that only the sheerest and scantiest of undergarments be worn, in many cases "knickers" doing duty for "intimate" outfit, think of the predicament of the woman who finds herself at a street corner on a windy day! Should the fastening immodestly loose its moorings, the chagrin of milady and the public may be imagined. These wrapped-over of purple, red or yellow, frocks of mustard, light gray and royal blue, predominate. Cotton novelties, voiles, crepes and batiste strike notes of originality in the design that are irresistible. Potted roses, green leaves and sprays are strewn over the surface, and the border is a galaxy of the vivid tints of the old-time garden, yet the impression of warmth of tone is no more evident than is that of a rose-bordered pathway on a quaintly-fashioned terrace.

It is not the sports-coat alone that has adopted the bright color tone. Those of silk, pongee, cotton and linen are most fashionable and pleasing. Girdles, belts, collars and cuffs carry out the same impression and are by no means unimportant factors of the summer wardrobe.

The summer girl, whether debutante bud or full-blown rose, knows the value of dress as a contribution to her summer happiness, and, shall I say it? to her conquests. The various accessories play no small part in enhancing her dainty charm. Her ruffles, collars, belts and fans are more important than her gowns—they are the piece de resistance of her wardrobe. It really is remarkable what smart summer costumes some women can acquire by picking up remnants here and there. Materials are now much reduced and may be obtained at about half the previous cost. Odds and ends of ribbon and lace may be had in the same way, and, fashioned into fichus, draperies, frills and bouffants, make most fascinating trimmings.

But of first importance to many women is the costume for morning and early afternoon wear. The frock of the second illustration is charming for this purpose. It was developed in that exquisite material silk ratine, of mustard shade with white dots. Ratine lace of similar shade was used for collar and cuffs. A girdle of tan-and-purple silk is brought well over the left hip, where skirts are not only in vogue for evening, but for afternoon wear also they are highly approved. The overlapping material is held down only halfway, leaving the remainder free. To be sure, drapery is used to conceal this fact, but this may frequently prove inefficient. Conservative woman, however, contends with none of fashion's freak manifestations. She recognizes discretion as the better part of valor, and rounds the breezy corner in mind while still fashioning her costume. To this end she chooses for her street suit a model on the lines of our first illustration. The costume was developed in two tones of eponge, the blue jacket contrasting effectively with the white skirt. Collar and cuffs are of white satin brocade, and the girdle, appearing between the cutaway lines of the jacket, was made of Bulgarian silk with blue for its predominating shade. The jacket has the fashionable one-piece back, with slightly rounded lower edge. The one-piece skirt is caught into stylishly draped folds at front and sides, the front fulness lying in graceful curves, apron fashion; the lower folds lie well to the hem of the skirt on the opposite side. For travel or wear in city or country the costume is equally charming. The white fabric of the skirt, although liable to soil easily, may be easily tubbed and no ironing is required.

Color, a consideration of the summer frock, constitutes a most fascinating study. On the principle of "first somebody told it," it has long been the custom to adopt theories of dress, add to them the authority invested in tradition, and offer the whole as correct formulae on no account to be questioned. In this way red has become known as impossible for a summer color, yet in the warmest countries of the south, where sun and sand and dust vie with one another in distressing the inhabitants, vivid colors are the rule—red, blue, yellow and purple. Our custom has been to add a little color in parasol, girdle or hat to our otherwise pure white outfits. The custom of adding color still prevails, but we are no longer satisfied with little color—it must run riot, and this season it does. The gay parasol, sayer than ever before, is being carried. Coats the end hangs free. The waist is made in kimono style and the skirt on the prevailing closely-fitted lines, with back laid in inverted pleat. For short trips out of town and for all practical purposes this frock is most attractive.

Those who spend the summer by the sea may appreciate a word about the bathing suit. It is impossible to improve on black satin as material for this suit. Preferably, it is severely plain, with deep yoke skirt and slash on either side the hem, showing underneath deep pleats of the same material. Collar and cuffs of dotted foulard brighten the suit effectively. A ruffled cap of this material is a pleasing addition. With the smart bathing suit silk stockings, of course, are worn. The shoes may be high, with crossed laces, or low, coming only to the ankle. In making a trip to the beach it is always advisable, too, to take along a loose cloak or long coat, which may be worn over the bathing suit to and from the water. This offsets the necessity of using the bathhouse, is an economy, and more in conformity with milady's sense of exclusiveness.

THE TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

FIREWORKS

By DOROTHY BLACKMORE

Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Because she was born on Independence day her parents had called her Gloria—Gloria Manners. And she might well have been called "Glorious" for she was a glorious child and she became a glorious woman. "I suppose it would have been Patricia had I come along on the seventeenth of March," she had remarked the day that she was sixteen years old. "And then I would have had to wear a shamrock and march in the parade for the sake of old Erin. Or I might have been a Valentine or a Christmas Carol—eh, father?"

"You couldn't have been improved upon, my daughter," remarked the proud father as he looked at the tall, slim girl beside him. "And now what about your birthday party?"

"The village president has ordered a 'safe and sane' Fourth, so our usual celebration and fireworks cannot be. I'm dreadfully disappointed, father. I love fireworks."

If the truth were known it was more than the mere fireworks that Gloria's father always celebrated her birthday with that the girl loved. Each year for the last three holidays the big fireworks company who furnished the display for Mr. Manners had sent the same young man to take charge of the entertainment. Gloria had always been in the midst of it, and she had become interested in the good looking, quiet young man. She did not know his name, and she had never seen him except on the three holidays when he had come to her father's house at the bidding of his company.

And yet Gloria knew that she cared for him. If she did not, why could she not forget him? Why should she think of him all through the year and look forward to his coming on her birthday?

This year there were to be no fireworks, and Gloria knew that the "safe and sane" Fourth meant for her a sorrowful, sad Fourth. But she would not let her parents see her disappointment; it would dampen their joy in her birthday.

A picnic supper was planned for the evening and all of Gloria's young friends had been asked to come. There was to be a dance in an out-of-door pavilion to take the place of the fireworks, and, altogether, Gloria knew that she ought not to be unhappy.

Late in the evening her father announced that there would be a cotillion figure in which all of the dancers were to join. The lights went out suddenly and from various directions were thrown colored light effects on the floor. The patterns marked by the lights on the dancing floor were to be used in the cotillion and when Gloria saw the young man who had always attended to the fireworks for her carefully directing the placing of the lighted patterns on the floor she could hardly believe her eyes. The whole party took on a new aspect.

"Daughter, will you begin the figure with young Mr. Raine—Mr. Raine, my daughter Gloria," said Mr. Manners, holding the young fellow by the arm in friendly fashion.

Gloria bowed and blushed, and though she did not understand how it had all come about she was too happy to question the situation.

"If your father hasn't explained my position, Miss Gloria," Edward Raine was saying, after the intricate figure had been successfully danced, "let me do so. My father, as you know, is the 'fireworks king,' and the first year he got the contract to display fireworks for your father on your birthday."

"Four years ago!" interrupted Gloria.

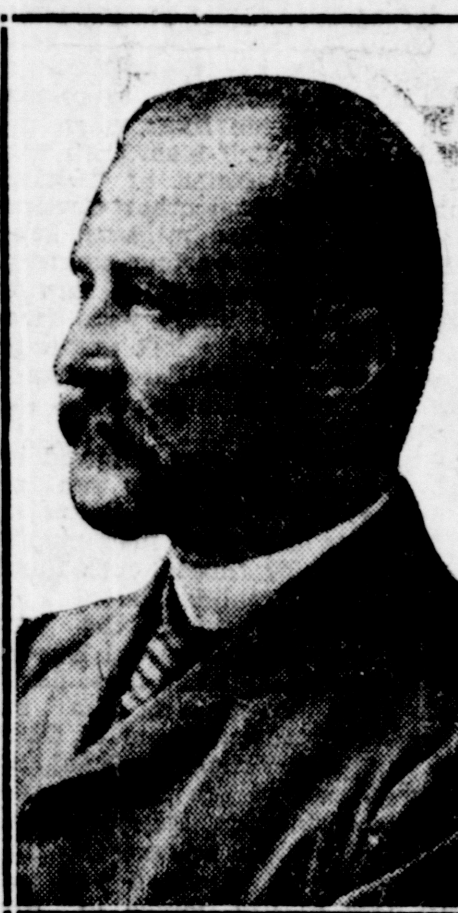

"Yes, four years tonight. I was just becoming interested in the business—it was my first year out of college—and I decided to begin at the bottom and know the whole line. Then, even though I had graduated from that particular line I—well, I came again the following year and the next," he said, looking at her.

Gloria's head was bent over her fan. "I—I remember you," she said, softly.

"Do you, Miss Gloria?" the young man asked eagerly. "I had hardly expected that. But this year, when your father came to see us in regard to the lighting effect for the dance in lieu of fireworks I happened to be in the office, and—a well, it was I who suggested the cotillion and the leading of the figure myself. I hoped it would be with you that I might lead—and it was. It looked like a bad piece of business for us—this shutting down of fireworks displays on the Fourth of July, but I think the 'safe and sane' Fourth is the happiest I have ever spent, Miss Gloria," he said earnestly.

"I—I was feeling terribly disappointed at the loss of the fireworks until—until the surprise father had in store for me transpired." Gloria admitted. And if young Raine might have been permitted to judge the state of her mind by the color effects in her cheeks he would have been

NEW PREMIER IS MAN OF HOUR

The new premier of Hungary, Count Stephen Tisza, is said to be a man of iron, who will rule the turbulent parliament in the same iron way as his predecessor. The count was speaker of the lower house of the Hungarian parliament till the fall of the last ministry, when he undertook the work of forming a new cabinet. His career will be watched by thousands of Hungarians and Austrians throughout the United States.

happy beyond words.

He had just finished marveling at the exquisite tint of her cheeks when Gloria's father came up to them where they sat on the white marble bench on the lawn.

"Is this a safe and sane Fourth, Gloria, my daughter?" he asked, looking from one to the other. "I see many signs about here of things that look anything but safe—and sane," he added, laughing.

Young Raine joined his laughter. "It's too glorious a night to expect anything else, Mr. Manners," he replied. "I notice a few cases myself, here and there. Is it time for another figure?"

"As you like—you're running this party now, young man," replied Mr. Manners, walking off, puffing his big cigar satisfactorily.

"Shall we dance?" Edward Raine asked, rising and looking down at Gloria. "And will you not mind being a partner in this figure again? It is another lighted pattern effect on the floor, and the object is to trace out the red hearts by means of the steps and twine them together as you will see—if the lanterns work," he added.

Gloria joined him. "I'll try," whispered Gloria, too happy to speak and not wanting to betray her happiness.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

The Gilded Chick on the Weather Vane.

The Wind Blew the Chick to the Vane.

"HAVE I ever told you the story of how the rooster got his place on the weather vane?" asked daddy. Jack and Evelyn could not remember that he had, so he began: "Once upon a time there was a mother hen who was very proud of her handsome chicks. Every one admired them, and she was very proud of her little ones."

"Once she did not have her usual luck with a setting of eggs. When the little chicks came out of the shells there was one egg out of which came a little half chick. He had one eye and one wing and one leg."

"One day the little half chick said to his mother: 'I'm going traveling I'm tired of this old barnyard.'"

"This barnyard may be dull, but it's a very safe place," his mother answered.

"I shall be quite safe. I'm going to visit the king," the half chick said.

"You are very foolish," his mother warned him. "The king doesn't care anything about chickens except in pies."

"But the little chick paid no attention to his mother and started out to visit the king. He had not gone far till he came to a spring that asked him to clear away the weeds that were choking it. He answered that he had no time and hurried on."

"A little farther along he came to a fire that was being smothered with damp sticks. The fire asked his help. 'I'm going to see the king, and I can't be bothered with you,' the half chick told it."

"Then he came to a bush in which the wind was tangled, and when the wind wished the chick to help free it he hopped right on, paying no attention."

"And when he came to the king's palace the cook was making a pie for his majesty. The king was wonderfully fond of chicken pie, and, seeing the little half chick, the cook caught it and threw it into the pot to boil for the pie."

"The chick begged the water not to drown it and the fire not to burn it, but these answers that when they were in trouble he would not help them. So the chick was burned to a crisp, and when the cook saw this she took the pot and threw him out."

"The wind was passing just then, and it took the chick and whirled him round and round. The chick begged the wind to let him go. The wind replied that when it had asked the chick to free it from the bush he had refused and now he need expect no favors from it, and the wind whirled the half chick to the top of the church tower, and there he stood, turning round and round, keeping his head toward the wind so that he might hear what the wind said. And since then there always has been a one legged fowl on weather vanes."

BET-YOU-MILLION GATES IN THE CITY

New York Millionaire Is Greeted by Noisy Welcome at North Side Depot

"Bet-you-million," John H. Gates, New York millionaire broker and financier, and a party of friends passed through the city early this morning on a special train on the Milwaukee railroad. The train carried a Pullman and a combination diner and observation car. The party is enroute from Minneapolis to New York.

It is rumored that Mr. Gates has been through the northwest looking into the prospects of wheat this fall. The party did not stop in the city longer than to change engines.

As they passed through the quiet little north side depot they were welcomed by a din that is seldom heard at the station. Although early in the morning, one of the dispatchers at the depot tipped the news to the "boys" and they loaded in preparation. A brakeman on the road ventured the remark that they didn't make the noise especially for the benefit of the millionaire, but just to be keeping up the noise that was started at midnight when the "Fourth" was ushered in.

As "Old Sol" mounted higher in the zenith this morning the noise of fire crackers grew less and less, and the north side took on its usual sedate air again. In observance of the movement of a "sane Fourth" residents of the north side are putting aside noise and smoke for outings and picnics, many families going out of the city to smaller towns and on camping and fishing trips.

Electric Resistance of Trees.

The electric resistance of trees is quite great, a quality which protects them to a considerable degree from lightning stroke. This resistance varies greatly with the character of the tissues and also with the temperature. This fact results in an annual and daily period in resistance. The cambium layer shows the least electrical resistance, followed by the phloem and sapwood.

Cities Are Transients.

What cities, as great as this, have once triumphed in existence, had their victories as great, joy as just and as unbounded, and, with short sighted presumption, promised themselves immortality? Posterity can hardly trace the situation of some; the sorrowful traveler wanders over the awful ruins of others; and, as he beholds, he learns wisdom and feels the transience of every sublunary possession.—Oliver Goldsmith.

Ruskin's Creed of Work.

The man or woman who does work worth doing is the man or woman who lives, breathes and sleeps that work; with whom it is ever present in his or her soul; whose ambition is to do it well and feel rewarded by the thought of having done it well. That man, that woman, puts the whole country under an obligation.—John Ruskin.

She Wouldn't Pay the Price.

The Southern Missionary Training school of Louisville, Ky., among its myriads of activities, offers music lessons for five cents to each little one with budding talent and no money. The one dissatisfied student who failed to appear for a second lesson explained that she "never got no nickel's worth at the first."

Dreams Come True.

A magician of old waved a wand that he might banish disease, a physician peers through a microscope to detect the bacillus of that disease and plan its defeat. The belief in miracles was premature, that is all; it was based on dreams now coming true.

May Need It in a Hurry.

Wall street continues to ship gold to Europe. Has President Wilson the plans and specifications of his Haman gibbet?

Humorists Always Geniuses.

Men of humor are always in some degree men of genius; wits are truly so, although a man of genius may, amongst other gifts, possess wit, as Shakespeare.—Coleridge.

Source of Tenderness.

Tenderness has no deeper source than the heart of a woman, devotion no purer shrine, sacrifice no more saintlike abnegation.—German Francois Pollain De Saint-Foix.

The Really Poor.

How many referred to by the unthinking world as eminently successful are really poor—in home and poor in friends, poor in reputation, poor in the power of enjoying life—poor and subjects for pity.

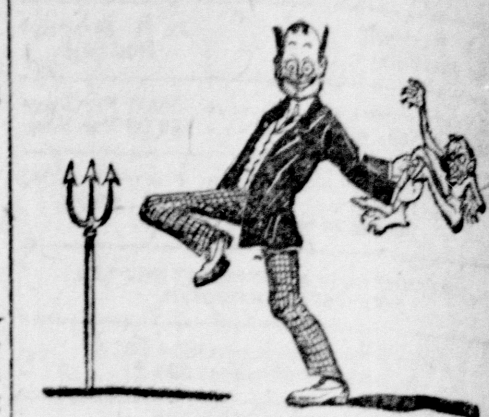

Even.

The woman in us still prosecutes a deceit like that begun in the garden; and our understandings are wedded to an Eve as fatal as the mother of their miseries.—Joseph Glanville.

Some people have a way of saying things to hurt the feelings of others just as if they were getting pay for it.

Good Time Now for Blood Health

Warm Days and Proper Help do Wonders for the Blood.

A few doses of that wonderful blood purifier, S. S. S., will start activities in the cellular tissues of the body and soon show decided changes in the skin. The skin is but a fine network of tiny blood vessels, and the specific action of S. S. S. is declared to be a pronounced stimulation of the activity of these cells. Certain it is that in a surprisingly short time any skin eruption shows a most remarkable change; it begins to dry up, the skin scales off in tiny flakes, and soon a layer of clear, healthy and firm tissue results.

The reason for this is in the peculiar stimulation of S. S. S., which enables the cells in the skin to select from the blood the nutriment it requires for regeneration.

This fact has been demonstrated year in and year out in a wonderful number of cases of severe skin diseases that had seemed to be incurable.

You can obtain S. S. S. at any well stocked drug store, if you insist upon it, but be sure you are not talked into something "just as good."

S. S. S. is prepared by the Swift Specific Co., 180 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Write for their illustrated book on skin diseases.

MADISON ITALIAN SHOT TO DEATH

Black Hand Society Is Believed Responsible for Murder at the Capital

MADISON, Wis., July 4.—The body of Caloreo Licore, 39 years old, was found on Thursday in the dark railway subway on Porter St., three blocks from his home.

He had been shot through the back the slugs having passed through his body. A large knife wound in the back of his head would also have caused his death.

The Madison police have been unable to secure any clues as to the identity of the murderer.

Licore had left Madison last fall and did not let his wife know where he was until he returned. It is the opinion of the police that he became connected with some of the Italian secret societies while in Milwaukee and that not only his return to this city but his murder were due to that connection.

Swallow It Quick.

Impatient people water their miseries and hoe up their comforts; sorrows are visitors that come without invitation, but complaining minds send a wagon to bring their troubles in. Many people are born crying; live complaining, and die disappointed; they chew the bitter pill which they would not even know to be bitter if they had the sense to swallow it whole in a cup of patience and water.—Charles H. Spurgeon.

MAY BE FORCED OUT OF POLITICS

Rumor has it that David Lloyd George, chancellor of the exchequer, and Sir Rufus Isaacs, attorney general, of Great Britain, are to be forced from politics by the Marconi Company stock scandal. Both have admitted they bought stock in the American Marconi company shortly before action of the British government, which resulted in an advance in the price of the stock, was taken. For many years the Unionists and their sympathizers have been after Lloyd George because of his radical theories and action. He had made himself the most prominent man in British politics, and was bitterly opposed by Tories.

SPARTA COUNCIL GRANTS LICENSES

SPARTA, Wis., July 4.—The council met on Monday evening and accepted the bonds and granted the licenses of the nine men who will conduct Sparta's irrigating stations for the ensuing year. They are as follows: J. C. Johnson, Hotel Lewis Buffet; Daniel McKagen, Pennant Bar; P. K. Kinder, Market Buffet; Charles Worth, Worth's Place; Tommy Knudson, Tom's Place; W. H. Van Antwerp, Palm Garden; Qualey & Willey, Gund's Buffet; Geo. Wagener, Bangor Saloon. McKagen succeeds Earl Seaton, former proprietor of the Pennant Bar, who goes to La Crosse and is in business at the Hellemann saloon in that city. McKagen has been Seaton's bartender. Kinder comes here from Gays Mills, having been forced to leave that city because of the prolonged dry spell declared by the voters. Wagoner comes from Wilton, this county, and has had many years experience in the saloon business. Both the newcomers are well recommended.

Vote Aid to Celebration

At the regular meeting of the council Tuesday evening there was voted to the Fourth of July committee by a majority of 6 to 2, the sum of two hundred dollars toward the expense of the celebration. Those aldermen voting against the appropriation were Smith and Jefferson. This appropriation was authorized by a law passed by the 1913 legislature. Floyd McCray appeared and remonstrated with the city fathers because of their evident intention to place him on the water wagon for the next year; said he didn't care about the booze, but being posted interfered with his business, which is just now that of a painter. No action was taken.

The pay of Officer Sullivan was raised to $2 per day and that of City Teamster Amos Mann to $55 per month and house rent. The city treasurer was instructed to enforce the collection of all delinquent dog taxes.

The matter of locating the place from the battleship Maine came up on the report of the committee recommending that the plate be set in a boulder five feet high by three feet wide by one and one-half feet thick; this was adopted. The council then voted to erect the same in the north park. Many citizens are today complaining about the action of the council in locating it away up in the north park, where no one except a few whose residences face it will ever see it. But it was located there because those residents and others had been to see the aldermen and asked that it be located there. And as there seemed to be no one interested in having it located on the library lawn or on the court house lawn or in the yard of the new federal building, or at least interested enough to speak to the aldermen about it, the north park won. By far a great majority of citizens favored the downtown site, arguing that more people would see it and that it would thus be serving its patriotic purpose better, but they were of the kind that simply express an opinion and let it go at that, and are too busy to hunt up aldermen and bring pressure to bear on them.

Impatient for New P. O.

Much inquiry is heard on the streets and elsewhere as to when the local postoffice building will be erected. The site has been provided and stands empty, an eyesore to the business section of town. The government is still paying rent to Senator Teasdale. Tomah, whose site was purchased long after the Sparta site, is said to be in a fair way to have a postoffice soon, as the appropriation for the building has been made by congress. Local people are getting impatient, very impatient, and feel that Uncle Sam should build his own postoffice and save the rent.

Love.

I am inclined to believe that for a woman love is the supreme authority—that which judges the rest and decides what is good or evil. For a man, love is subordinate to right. It is a great passion, but it is not the source of order, the synonym of reason, the criterion of excellence. It would seem, then, that a woman placed her ideal in the perfection of love and a man in the perfection of justice.—Henri Frederic Amiel.

Crossing Africa in Motorboat.

Lieutenant Gratz of the German army has succeeded in crossing Africa in a motorboat. The most important geographical result of the enterprise appears to be the discovery that there is a continuous waterway from the source of the Zambezi, in northern Rhodesia, to the River Kongo, which is thus proved to be the longest river in Africa. In 1909 the same official crossed Africa in a motorcar.

STATE FUNDS GET LOW

GENERAL FUND HAS $1,765,102.50 LESS THAN AT THIS TIME IN 1912—ROADS TO SAVE DAY

MADISON, Wis., July 4.—(Special.)—According to the balance sheet of State Treasurer Henry Johnson, the books of the state treasury at the close of the fiscal year, June 30, showed $267,040.69 in the general fund, as compared with $2,932,143.19 on July 1, 1912, a difference of $1,765,102.50. The railroads will come to the relief of the situation next month with the second payment of their taxes.

In accordance with Attorney General Owen's recent opinion, the heads of many of the state departments are filing new lists of appointments of their employees. They are given the privilege of readjusting their working force to meet the conditions prevailing in their offices, and it is likely that from time to time changes in employees will be made. None have as yet been announced, however.

The senate committee on judiciary has recommended for passage bill 5508, allowing the Provident Loan association of Milwaukee to charge 24 per cent instead of 14 per cent interest on loans. Senators W. L. Richards of Milwaukee and Victor Linley of Superior dissented.

The committee also recommended for passage the Teasdale bill prohibiting proprietors of billiard and pool rooms from allowing minors under 16 to play in or loiter around such places if requested not to do so by parents or guardian.

The committee also favorably reported the Zophy bill providing that the birthdays of Washington and Lincoln shall be observed with patriotic exercises in public schools. The bill providing for the licensing of all dogs in the state after Jan. 1, 1914, was recommended for indefinite postponement.

Moral indifference.

If ignorance and passion are the foes of popular morality, it must be confessed that moral indifference is the malady of the cultivated classes. UNCLE SAM'S TINIEST OFFICE MAY CLOSE; POSTMISTRESS GROWS WEARY OF HER JOB

Mrs. Anderson and her postoffice home.

Uncle Sam's smallest postoffice may be abolished because the seventy-one-year-old postmistress, Mrs. Armstrong, insists on retiring.

The little postoffice was established January 1, 1909, and is located at Wicklow, near Backus, Cass county, Minn. It serves a community of just fourteen persons.

Mrs. Armstrong, despite her age, is still vigorous. She says, though, that keeping a postoffice interferes with her farm and garden duties.

action differs in days of peace from its action in days of war.

War Never Ceases

May we break camp now and be at ease? Are the forces that fight for the nation dispersed, disbanded, gone to their homes forgetful of the common cause? Are our forces disorganized, without constituted leaders and the might of men consciously nited because we contend, not with armies, but with principalities and powers and wickedness in high places. Are we content to lie still? Does our union mean sympathy, our peace contentment, our vigour right action, our maturity self-comprehension and a clear confidence in choosing what we shall do? War fitted us for action, and action never ceases.

I have been chosen the leader of the nation. I can not justify the choice by any qualities of my own, but so it has come about, and here I stand. Whom do I command? The ghostly hosts who fought upon these battle fields long ago and are gone? These gallant gentlemen stricken in years whose fighting days are over, their glory won? What are the orders for them, and who rallies them? I have in my mind another host, whom these set free of civil strife in order that they might work out in days of peace and settled order the life of a great nation. That host is the people themselves, the great and the small, without class or difference of kind or race or origin; and undivided in interest, if we have but the vision to guide and direct them and order their lives aright in what we do. Our constitutions are their articles of enlistment. The orders of the day are the laws upon our statute books. What we strive for is their freedom, their right to lift themselves from day to day and behold the things they have hoped for, and so make way for still better days for those whom they love who are to come after them. The recruits are the little children crowding in. The quartermaster's stores are in the mines and forests and fields, in the shops and factories. Every day something must be done to push the campaign forward; and it must be done by plan and with an eye to some great destiny.

How shall we hold such thoughts in our hearts and not be moved? I would not have you live even today wholly in the past, but would wish to stand with you in the light that streams upon us now out of that great day gone by. Here is the nation God has builded by our hands. What shall we do with it? Who stands ready to act again and always in the spirit of this day of reunion and hope and patriotic fervor? The day of our country's life has but broadened into morning. Do not put uniforms by. Put the harness of the present on. Let your eyes to the great tracts of life yet to be conquered, of that prosperity which lies in a people's hearts and outlasts all wars and errors of men. Come, let us be comrades and soldiers yet to serve our fellow men in quiet counsel, where the blare of trumpets is neither heard nor heeded and where the things are done which make blessed the nations of the world in peace and righteousness and love.

EAU CLAIRE MAN FOUND MURDERED

Body of Henry Craig Discovered in Chippewa River; Signs of a Struggle

ROBBERY BELIEVED THE MOTIVE

Exhibited $500 in Saloon Before Death; Small Change Left in Clothes

EAU CLAIRE, Wis., July 4.—A dark object floating on the Chippewa river Thursday afternoon proved on investigation to be the body of Henry Craig, 50 years old, a long resident of the city and who was prominent in its business and social life.

Deep gashes about his head had evidently been made by a knife and various bruises on his body could only have been inflicted with a heavy instrument. Mr. Craig had, apparently, made a desperate struggle for his life, as his clothing was torn in many places.

The police have learned he was last seen Wednesday night in a saloon where he exhibited a roll of bills containing about $500. When the body was found there was only a little change in the pockets and Mr. Craig's watch. It is thought the murder was committed at about midnight, as the watch had stopped at 12:30 o'clock.

The police are going on the assumption that some one in the saloon saw the roll of bills carried by Mr. Craig, followed him from the place, attempted to rob him and killed him in the struggle and that the body was thrown into the river to hide the crime.

Several of the men in the place have been brought to the police station and questioned closely, but nothing has been elicited that would indicate the identity of the murderer or murderers.

Mr. Craig, who was an employee of the New Dells Lumber company, had just returned to the city and was to have taken part in a large family reunion at his home on Friday. He is survived by his wife and several children.

SUFFRAGETTES BURN FACTORY

BIRMINGHAM, England, July 4.—Militant suffragettes today burned a factory here, causing a loss of $20,000.

PISTOL POCKET FOR THE WOMEN

Ladies must carry guns this fall and winter. Fashion has decreed it, fashion speaking through the National Ladies' Tailors and Dressmakers' association—whose national convention has just adjourned—and this photograph shows one of the approved styles.

Of course the pocket is not large and will not carry a "forty-four." It will hold a 22 caliber, short barreled weapon, the bullet from which will not kill unless it strikes directly a vital spot.

The other day Mrs. Robert H. Elder of Brooklyn, one of the busiest suffragettes in the United States, sought a license to carry a pistol, and she may set the fashion among women who seek the vote. The men milliners would not say they had designed their fashion to meet the suffragette demand.

OUR ABRAHAM LINCOLN'S GETTYSBURG SPEECH

DELIVERED ON THE BATTLEFIELD, NOV. 19, 1863.

Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in Liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.

Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battlefield of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

But in a larger sense we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow, this ground.

The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here have consecrated it far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little note nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us, the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced.

It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us—that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.

The Food One Needs.

All over the world the amount of actual nutrition that a workingman needs is just about the same, whether he be mining in Siberia, engineering in Panama, planting in Brazil or farming in New England. This average has been found by a number of scientific investigators to be about four and one-half ounces of protein, sixteen ounces of carbohydrates and four and one-half ounces of fat for a man who does a moderate or average day's work. For a woman, about four-fifths of the above amount is required, while children, except in a few especially rapid growing stages, need even less than that.—New York American.

Dickens' Handwriting.

It is a singular distinction of Charles Dickens' handwriting that—early formed in those galloping postchaises by lantern light—it became not only as clear as Thackeray's, but more beautiful than any other handwriting in the world. It has movement, grace, charming form in the capitals and that indefinable thing, touch. One "unregarded curl" (Poe's word of a lady's hair) in Dickens' script has spring in it and rebound. Probably a magnifying glass would show in detail this vitality in every letter of his alphabet.

The Talmud consists of the "Mishnah" and the "Gemara."

The former is a somewhat ill arranged transcript of the "Oral Law" and is a book of no very great length. It was drawn up in its present form, though not written down, about the year 200 A. D. The Gemara may be roughly described as a sort of gigantic commentary on the Mishnah, but is a commentary of which enormous portions seem to have absolutely nothing to do with the text on which it comments.

Maximilian.

Among famous tall men of history was the Roman emperor Maximilian, whose height was said to be seven and three-fourths feet. He was a young barbarian, the son of Gothic ancestors, and he first attracted the notice and admiration of the Romans by overcoming sixteen of their strongest men, one after the other.

Two Long Words.

FULL LIVES.

The shortness of life is bound up with its fullness. It is to him who is most active, always thinking, feeling, working, caring for people and for things, that life seems short. Strip a life empty and it will seem long enough.—Phillips Brooks.

HEALTH BOARD FOR MARRIAGE RULINGS

MADISON, Wis., July 4.—(Special.)—The state board of health at its semi-annual meeting this week approved of a bill to be introduced through the senate committee on education and public welfare regulating future marriages. It requires male applicants for marriage licenses to present a physician's certificate of freedom from specified diseases. Such physicians shall be appointed by the state board of health. Each county shall have not to exceed five examiners, except in counties of over 300,000 population, where not to exceed twenty shall be appointed. The fee for such examination is to be $3.

A provision is added to circumvent marriages of diseased persons who go to other states and return to reside in Wisconsin. The act is made effective Jan. 1, 1914.

MEN WHOM MULHALL SAYS LOBBY FOUGHT AFFIRM HIS CHARGES; WILL TESTIFY BEFORE LOBBY COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON.—While practically all the men charged by Col. Martin M. Mulhall with having played into the hands of the lobby which he says was maintained at Washington by the National Association of Manufacturers, have emphatically denied the charges, it is also true that several persons declared by Mulhall to have been the object of N. A. M. attacks support him in his charges.

According to Mulhall, Speaker Champ Clark of Missouri was opposed by every influence at the command of the association, both in 1908 and 1911, because of his friendly attitude toward labor legislation. Clark declares that this statement is true.

According to Mulhall, every effort was made to bribe Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, and after these efforts failed he was made the target of many forms of attack to discredit him. Gompers in a long detailed statement has affirmed the statements of Mulhall.

Others who were the objects of a relentless warfare on the part of the N. A. M., according to Mulhall are former Congressman John L. Burnett, of the Seventh Alabama district, former Congressman Henry L. Maynard of the Second West Virginia district, Congressman A. Coper of the First Wisconsin district, former Congressman Thomas D. Nichols of Tenth Pennsylvania district, former Congressman Herbert Parsons of New York, Congressman W. S. Green of Massachusetts, former Congressman William B. Wilson, Pennsylvania labor leader, who is now in Wilson's cabinet; former U. S. Senator McComas of Maryland, opposed for every office he ran for because of his authorship of the general eight-hour bill; U. S. Senator William Hughes of New Jersey, former Congressman Kellher and Connolly of Massachusetts, John Mitchell, former president of the United Mine Workers of America, and Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor.

Several or all of these men will be asked to testify before the lobby investigating committee.

100 IMMERSED IN LAKE AT MADISON

MADISON, Wis., July 4.—(Special.)—One hundred followers of pastor Charles T. Russell of Brooklyn, N. Y., were immersed in Lake Monona yesterday afternoon. They are delegates to the convention of the International Bible Students' association, which is being held at Monona Park auditorium opposite this city. The immersion service was for the benefit of the public and is not part of the ceremony of inducing persons into any particular denomination. Mr. Russell spoke on baptism.

A testimonial meeting was held yesterday morning, followed by talks by George Draper of South Dakota and R. H. Barber of Atlanta, Ga., W. J. Van Auberg, permanent chairman of the Madison convention, was the principal speaker yesterday, taking the place of Dr. O. A. Ericson of St. Paul, Minn., who was unable to come.

PLYMOUTH CHEESE MAKER BANKRUPT

MILWAUKEE, July 4.—Henry J. Bamford, at one time president of the National Cheese Dealers' association and now a large cheese manufacturer of Plymouth, Wis., filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in United States court on Wednesday. His liabilities are more than $150,000, with $100,000 in secured and unsecured claims. Assets are declared to be nearly equal to the amount of indebtedness.

Under the name of the H. J. Bamford Cheese company he has been in business in Plymouth for thirty years. Besides being president of the national association Mr. Bamford is a prominent member of the state association. In addition to his big warehouse at Plymouth, Mr. Bamford had depots in all the cheese centers of the state.

Bamford's is the second failure of a cheese manufacturer in Wisconsin this year. The other was that of C. W. Starret, who failed on May 6.

SOX BUNCH HITS
DEFEAT BROWNS

Cicotte Allows Three Hits in Six Innings; Ten Round Contest

YANKEES ON WAY TO THE CELLAR

Washington and Boston Play Fifteen Inning Game and Net Only One Score

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 4.—The White Sox defeated the Browns in a ten inning contest here yesterday, 4 to 3. The visitors tallied the winning run as a result of bunched hits off Mitchell in the final round. Scott started for the visitors, but was removed at the end of the fourth after the locals had tied the score. Cicotte, who finished the contest, allowed only three hits in six innings. Mitchell went all the way for the Browns. Score: R H E Chicago 1000020001—4 11 1 St. Louis 1101000000—3 9 0

Batteries: Scott, Cicotte and Easterly; Mitchell and Annew.

Philadelphia, 8; New York, 4

NEW YORK, July 4.—The Yankees continued their slide to the cellar by losing yesterday's game to the Athletics, 8 to 4. Brown was in fine form, permitting only five hits. The Athletics hit Keating, McConnell and Hanley whenever they pleased. Oldring planted a homer in the left field bleachers in the third inning. Score: R H E Philadelphia 113000102—8 12 2 New York 000020002—4 5 2

Batteries: Brown and Lapp; Keating, McConnell, Hanley and Sweeney.

Cleveland, 3; Detroit, 1

CLEVELAND, July 4.—The Naps took the measure of the Tigers yesterday, 3 to 1, by connection with Dauss' offerings when hits meant runs. Kahler, on the whole, was master of the situation except in the sixth, when Veatch's single and McKee's double produced the Tiger's only run. It was Birmingham day in honor of the Nap's manager; and about 8,000 fans turned out. Score: R H E Detroit 000000010—1 3 2 Cleveland 00002001X—3 11 0

Batteries: Dauss and McKee; Kahler and O'Neill.

Washington, 1; Boston, 0

BOSTON, July 4.—Walter Johnson and Ray Collins engaged in a great pitchers' battle yesterday afternoon, the "Terrible Swede" winning out in the fifteenth inning by a score of 1 to 0. He had all kinds of luck, however, the Red Sox hitting him hard throughout the game but their drives were frequently right at the opposing fielders.

The Senators were only able to get nine hits in the fifteen innings and it was only in the last round that they could get two safeties in one inning. With one down, Grandit doubled to left and Moran fled to Speaker. Then Shanks pasted the ball to the score board for two bases, scoring Gandil with the winning run. By winning today the Senators cleaned up the series, taking all four games. Score: R H E Wash. 00000000000001—1 9 0 Boston 00000000000000—0 15 1

Batteries: Johnson and Alsmith; Collins and Carrigan.

ROBERT TAYLOR THE PRESIDENT'S CADDY

Although those who do not play golf suspect swearing is a necessary part of the game, President Wilson's new caddy, Robert Emmet Taylor of Washington, a very bright, small boy, insists that the strongest words used by his employer when things go wrong are "Tut, tut!"

"He often gets a little bit peevish," said the caddy, who has followed the president for miles over the links of the Washington Country club.

Sometimes he says things to the golf clubs under his breath," explained the caddy. And just what the president says to his clubs the caddy doesn't know.

"But you don't have to swear to be a good golf player," said the boy.

Watching The Scoreboard

By taking the long end of the score of the 11-inning game yesterday the Giants made a clean sweep of the series with Philadelphia and are well established in the lead. The Phillies have lost eight straight games.

Brooklyn's hopes of gaining on the tumbling Phillies were bumped by Boston. The Braves made it three out of four for the series. In the weird tussle yesterday Boston hit Stack and Wagner safely twenty times, the bombardment including two home runs and two doubles.

Mann led with three hits out of five times up, including a home run and a double in his string.

The Cardinals took ten hits off Hendrix in the game with the Pirates, but reached third base only once. The Pirates scored only four runs on their nine hits.

Lavender was in good form and the Cubs won the jump game in the series with the Reds.

The Athletics made a clean sweep of the series by taking yesterday's game with the Yanks. Brown held the New Yorkers to five hits, while the Mackmen drove out eleven. Oldring contributed three singles and a home run in five times at bat and stole two bases.

Doubles by Gandil and Shanks in the fifteenth inning finally broke up the Washington-Boston game which was one of the tightest of the season.

Collins yielded but nine hits to Walter Johnson's fifteen but Johnson worked himself out of bad holes in masterly fashion.

Joe Jackson connected safely three times out of four trips to the plate in helping the Naps down Detroit.

PHILLIES HOLD THE GIANTS 11 INNINGS

Wild Throw to First Gives Final of the Series to New York Team

THE CUBS TRIM CINCINNATI REDS

Lavender Holds Cincinnati Helpless at All Stages; Pittsburgh Wins in First

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 4.—With McGraw witnessing yesterday's game from the grandstand as a result of his five day suspension for Monday's difficulty, the Giants took the fourth and final game of the series with the Phillies 4 to 2, the contest going eleven innings. The Giants were one run to the bad when they went to bat in the seventh. Up to this time Demaree had been hit rather hard and seeing a chance to bring in a tally, McCormick was sent in as a pinch hitter, batting for Demaree. McCormick singled and brought in Murray. This ended the run getting until the eleventh, Fromme holding the locals safe. With one down Herzog doubled to right and scored a minute later on Merkle's single. Murray walked. When Dolan threw Snodgrass' rap wild to first, Merkle tallied with the second run. Score: R H E Philadelphia 0002000000—2 8 1

Batteries: Demaree, Fromme and Heyers; Alexander and Killifer.

Chicago, 5; Cincinnati, 1

CHICAGO, July 4.—The Cubs trimmed the Reds, 5 to 1. Opportune hitting of Suggs made the game an easy affair. Lavender held the Reds helpless at all stages and received brilliant support. Their only run came in the eighth when Devore, pinch hitting for Suggs, tripled and scored on an out. Score: R H E Cincinnati 000000010—1 6 2 Chicago 02002100X—5 8 0

Batteries: Suggs, Packard and Clarke; Lavender and Archer.

Pittsburg, 4; St. Louis, 0

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 4.—The Pirates fell upon Harmon in the first inning yesterday and tallied sufficient runs to win the game. The final score was 4 to 0. Hendrix was in splintered form. While touched up for ten hits they were widely scattered. The Cardinals filled the bases with one down in the seventh. Konechy, Evans and O'Leary batting safely in succession, but were unable to score. Wingo batting into a double play. Pirate Miller was switched from first to short and his place was taken by Hyatt who slammed out two triples. Score: R H E St. Louis 000000000—0 10 0 Pittsburg 30000010X—4 9 0

Batteries: Harmon and Wingo; Hendrix and Simon.

Boston, 17; Brooklyn, 4

BROOKLYN, July 4.—Slamming Stack and Wagner for twenty base hits yesterday, the Braves smothered Brooklyn, 17 to 4. Stack started the game for the locals, but he was yanked early in the second inning after he had walked two men and given a base hit, filling the bases. Wagner went in, but he could not stop the bombardment and four runs came in before the inning was over. It looked as though Brooklyn would overcome the lead in the fifth when they brought in four men by hard hitting, but the Braves kept right at it and in the eighth, with a fusillade of hits, one of them a homer, scored four runs and this they followed with four more in the final session. Score: R H E Boston 040121144—17 20 0 Brooklyn 000000000—4 11 4

Batteries: Dickson, Perdue and Rariden; Stack, Wagner and Miller.

PROMISING YOUNG HURLER WITH BROWNS

Walter Leverenz.

Walter Leverenz is a new addition to the pitching staff of the St. Louis American league team and is one of the most promising of the youngsters in the game this season. Although he has lost more games than he has won, this is due to the fact that he has very poor support. St. Louis stands seventh in the American league race.
